

Governor Asks Ulster Aid From Nixon

DORIA AFTERMATH

(Freeman Photo by Kruh)

KINGSTON President Nixon is expected to issue an Executive Order declaring Ulster County a major disaster area as a result of flood damage caused by tropical storm Doria in late August.

Flood damage in the county was estimated at in excess of $280,000.

Governor Rockefeller officially notified the President of the county's request for emergency funds on Friday.

Ulster County, through its Office of Civil Defense and Natural Disaster, has applied for approximately $220,000 in emergency funds.

President Nixon is expected to approve the request, although not necessarily for the amount requested by the county. That approval may come next week.

Mrs. Julia R. Lane, an Ulster County Deputy Civil Defense Director, explained that the county's Civil Defense Director (Charles L. Arnold) also serves as the county's Natural Disaster Coordinator and, as such, is required to compile a complete list of the damages incurred throughout the county as the result of a natural occurrence.

That list, is then forwarded to the New York State Office of Civil Defense, along with a request for emergency funds. The request is subject to the approval of the State CD office and the Governor, before it is referred to the President.

A federal investigation is then conducted to determine if the request is warranted, before the President may issue an Executive Order authorizing the grant.

Tropical storm Doria dumped up to seven inches of rain on parts of Ulster County Aug. 27 and 28, inflicting the most severe damage in the southern portion of the county.

Mrs. Lane stated that the bulk of the emergency funds will be used to repair damaged roads, ditches, drainage culverts and creekbeds in the Town of Lloyd and Village of Highland. She noted that, in one instance, an entire street in Highland was wiped out by a rock and mud slide caused by the torrential rains.

Funds were also requested to repair heavy damage in the Towns of Rochester and Wawarsing. Less severe after-effects of the storm were reported in the Towns of Hurley and Shandaken.

There were no requests for funds to repair damage in the City of Kingston or the Towns of Woodstock, Saugerties, Marlborough or Esopus, said Mrs. Lane.

Peter J. Savago, chairman of the Ulster County Legislature, said that the county's application for a "major disaster area" classification was made several weeks ago. He said he did not foresee any difficulties in receiving the requested amount.

Higher Taxes Possible, According to Rockefeller

ALBANY, N.Y. (UPI) — Governor Rockefeller said Friday what some critics have been saying for months: More spending cuts or higher taxes may be needed before the year is out.

The governor, in his annual budget summary, indicated a deficit of $470 million — perhaps far more — at current spending levels.

He warned that the budget gap would climb to $770 million if voters reject the state's second $2.5 billion transportation bond issue in the November referendum.

The budget for the current year anticipates approval of the bond issue — and uses $300 million of its funds.

Even with the major cut in state spending ordered earlier this year, Rockefeller said, the budget totals $7.95 billion. Tax revenues, he said, will provide only about $7.4 billion.

It was after the initial spending cuts were enacted that opponents of the governor, primarily minority Democrats in the legislature, said even more reductions or higher taxes might be required later in the year to balance the budget.

A spokesman for State Budget Director Richard L. Dunham said no tax hike was being drawn at this point, but he would not rule out the possibility in the future.

"We are waiting to see what happens to the bond issue, and to get a little better idea of the revenue picture in the second half of the (fiscal) year before we pose solutions to the gap," he said.

But the budget summary said that further cuts in state spending alone could not close the gap unless drastic reductions in state aid were made. It pointed out that state aid, which was relatively untouched in earlier budget slashing, took up $4.8 billion of the budget.

To make all the cuts in areas outside state aid would force "immediate shutdown of the State University System and all state mental hospitals" or firing half the state work force effective Friday, the summary said.

"In other words, we are at a point where steps to curtail desirable, but lower priority programs, and to further improve operating efficiency will not solve the problem," the summary said. "Expenditure cuts of the magnitude required undoubtedly would entail further statutory revision of state aid formulas, alteration of aid payment dates, or complete elimination of certain state aid programs.

"As a partial or complete alternative, revenues could be increased through tax rate changes, either temporary or permanent, and action to revise payment dates of state taxes in order to realize one-time benefits," the report said.

The summary said the revenue picture was "unlikely to improve" before the end of the year and that President Nixon's wage-price freeze might have a long-range impact on the state's spending problem, but would probably be of no help in the current fiscal year.

The governor noted that already $650 million has been cut out of the budget he originally proposed, including the firing of some 8,800 state workers, and major reductions in welfare and Medicaid.

The slowdown in the national economy was blamed for the state budget problems. The report said that during the last quarter of the previous fiscal year tax collections fell off $160 million, forcing the state to delay paying some $195 million in bills until early this year.

Looking to the future beyond the current fiscal year the summary said, "It will be impossible for the state to continue to meet its commitments and present program responsibilities at anything like existing growth rates until the federal government provides a meaningful solution to the growing financial crisis that afflicts all state and local governments."

Soviets Deny Reports Of Chinese Defector

MOSCOW (AP) — The Soviet government denied Friday night that the man who was once Mao Tse-tung's heir-apparent had escaped from Communist China and defected to the Soviet Union.

The denial, attributed to Yuri Kornilov, a commentator for the government news agency Tass, said a report Thursday from the Japanese news agency Jiji Tsushin stating that Liu Shao-chi was in Moscow was a "canard Japanese style."

"Jiji Tsushin contends that it had allegedly got its information from a 'Tass bulletin,' the Soviet agency said.

It added that "Tass did not circulate such information and all this is the fantasy of a Japanese reporter."

Communist Chinese diplomats here also emphatically denied that Liu Shao-chi was in the Soviet Union.

The Tass denial concluded with the question: "Why did the Japanese agency need these tall tales?"

Jiji Tsushin's Moscow correspondent, Takayuki Nakazawa, said his report originated from "unofficial Soviet sources" who had access to news reports of "White Tass."

"White Tass" is generally believed to be a secret arm of the Tass news agency which reports uncensored news to the Soviet leadership.

Liu Shao-chi, who was believed to be under house arrest in Peking, was officially disgraced in Communist China during the cultural revolution in 1966 mainly for his disagreement with Mao over China's relations with the Soviet Union.

In Taipei, a top nationalist Chinese intelligence officer said the Liu may have been among the nine persons killed in a Chinese plane that crashed in Communist Mongolia.

Tass reported Thursday that a Chinese military airplane crashed and burned in Mongolia while flying there without permission on Sept. 13. A Communist Chinese Foreign Ministry spokesman said the plane was a commercial airliner that went astray.

Meanwhile, Peking said today Mao Tse-tung has received a collection of messages from foreign heads of state congratulating him on China's 22nd National Day anniversary but no mention was made of the aging Communist party chief's activities.

This heightened speculation over the 77-year-old leader's health and the possibility of a political power struggle. However, a Chinese Communist newspaper denounced such speculation as "ridiculous wild rumors."

Peking's official news agency said Mao received messages from the leaders of Albania, Romania, North Korea, North Vietnam and from the deposed Cambodian head of state, Prince Norodom Sihanouk, who heads an exiled regime in Peking.

Traditionally, Mao stood atop Peking's Gate of Heavenly Peace to review National Day parades. The parade this year reportedly was cancelled for economy reasons and there was no picture of Mao on the front pages of Chinese newspapers and no joint editorial marking the festive day.

Hsinhua, the New China News Agency, gave no explanation of the departures from tradition.

Dock Strike Stymies Trade; Coal Talks Are Recessed

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS Longshoremen's walkouts in all but a few U.S. seaports have halted major ocean trade, but the shutdown poses little immediate threat to the economy because importers had expected it for months and stockpiled shipments.

The Association of American Railroads embargoed freight movement of export items such as grain and coal to East and Gulf Coast ports that were struck Friday when dockworkers' contracts with shippers expired.

Meanwhile the nation's soft coal production remained at a virtual standstill today, with talks to end a two-day-old strike by 80,000 mine workers recessed for the weekend.

Coal workers in 20 states stopped work Friday following expiration of their contract with the Bituminous Coal Operators Association.

The walkout by the AFL-CIO International Longshoremen's Association closed every port from Louisiana to Maine as a walkout by the International Longshoremen's and Warehousemen's Union on the West Coast entered its fourth month. Ports in Houston and three other Texas cities were kept open by ILA locals that refused to join the walkout, and union workers under separate contracts with Midwestern shippers kept freight moving from Great Lakes ports.

The nation's first simultaneous shutdown of Atlantic and Pacific ports idled international bulk mail, forced passengers arriving aboard cruise liners to carry their luggage ashore and posed a threat to farm prices.

President Nixon withheld immediate emergency action under the Taft-Hartley Act to temporarily halt the two strikes. He said he had received optimistic reports on negotiations on the West Coast and hoped for a quick settlement there.

There was little hope, however, for an early settlement of the east's walkout.

Each of the ILA's contract rounds since the end of World War II has ended in work stoppage. Last July importers 15; began stepping up their shipments in anticipation things would be no different this time.

A union official said, for example, that Scotch whisky for Christmas was usually arrived in New York in October but came in June this year.

Exporters in Europe, already hit hard by the 10 per cent surcharge on goods imported in the United States, prepared alternative shipping routes in the event of a long shutdown of the East and Gulf coast ports.

British exporters said they might have to ship heavy goods to the United States through Canadian seaports and overland truck routes.

The East Coast strike began after federal mediators were unable to help the union and the New York Shipping Association resolve an impasse over a provision in the expired contract for a guaranteed annual income.

The plane left London at 11:05 a.m. and was scheduled to arrive at Salzburg at 1:35 p.m. Police and firemen from Ghent rushed to the scene of the crash to help local rescue workers.

63 Killed in Plane Crash

GHENT, Belgium (UPI) — A British European Airways (BEA) airliner carrying 63 persons on a flight from London to Salzburg, Austria, crashed today in a field about six miles from here, police reported.

They said it was feared that all 55 passengers and eight crew members were killed.

The British-built Vanguard turboprop went down near the road between Deinze and Tiel in northwest Belgium, an airport official said. Deinze is about six miles from Ghent. The first report of the crash came from a civilian near the scene. The control tower at Brussels' Zaventem Airport said there had been no distress signal from the pilot.

Police quoted one witness as saying the plane exploded in flight, lost a wing and plunged almost straight down into the ground.

The plane left London at 11:05 a.m. and was scheduled to arrive at Salzburg at 1:35 p.m.

NEW TOWN OFFICES—Town of Ulster Supervisor Carmine Sabino leads the way as town officials move into their new facilities in the former State Police barracks near the intersection of Routes 209 and 9W. Town offices had been located in the Lake Katrine Grange Hall since 1936, but the need for more room prompted Friday's move. Mrs. Charles VanEtten, (l.), deputy Town Clerk and Mrs. John T. Troopers also reported the arrest of a 30-year-old Kingston man who has been charged with second degree criminal possession of stolen property.

According to State Police BCI Investigator J. F. Slaters, the four arrested Friday night have also been implicated in the burglaries of four other beer distribution establishments over the past month.

State Police on routine patrol late Friday were alerted to the Fallsburg facility by a newly installed burglar alarm. The four, according to police, were allegedly caught inside the building. In addition, police alleged that they had removed several items from the building when they were apprehended.

Trooper R. M. Sparrow reported that the three youths arrested were Richard Bohan, 18, of River Road, Ulster Park; Harold J. Holts, 17, of Saugerties and Jack C. Williamson, 16, of Lake Katrine. The fourth youth, a minor, was not identified.

The four were arraigned before Town of Ulster Justice Sherrod E. Davis on a third degree burglary charge. They were committed to the Ulster County Jail in lieu of $2,500 bail each pending a preliminary hearing on a later date.

Trooper Sparrow also reported the arrest of 30-year-old Edward Ingram of East Chester Street, Kingston on a charge of second degree criminal possession of stolen property. Ingram was arraigned before Judge Davis and committed to the Ulster County Jail in lieu of $1,000 bail for a later court hearing.

Investigator Slaters stated that a warrant had been issued for the arrest of Ingram earlier in the week, and that the man turned himself in at State Police headquarters in Hurley.

Slaters noted that Ingram was charged with having in his possession a diamond ring, valued at $500, that had been stolen from a West Hurley home over the July 4 weekend.

Memoriam
In loving memory of Anne Lukaszewski who passed away eight years ago today, October 3, 1963.

There's a sad but sweet remembrance,
There's a memory fond and true;
And a token of affection mother,
And a heartache still for you.

Memoriam
In loving memory of my husband, Leeman H. Chase Sr., on October 2, 1971.

Down Memory's lane I wander
To your grave, not far away.
Where they gently lowered your body,
Just three years ago today.

When a door swings open,
And a loved one slips away,
Out of this world of sorrow,
Into a brighter day.

His eyes saw only goodness,
His words were words of cheer,
His hands brought only comfort,
And help throughout the year.

His heart gave love,
In a generous way,
That was my wonderful husband,
Always, day after day.

Sadly missed by your wife,
LILLIAN

Memoriam
In loving memory of our Father, and Grandfather, Leeman H. Chase Sr., whom God called home three years ago, October 2, 1971.

No written words can erase the heartache of this day.
We believe instead of tears,
You would want us to pray;
For more faith and grace, and understanding in our God above.

Please, God, take good care of our father and grandfather,
Keep him in your loving care,
Make up to him all he suffered,
And everything that was unfair.
For you never know the heartache,
Til you find he isn't there.

Factions Report Movement In Paltz Contract Talks

By WADE BURKHART

NEW PALTZ
Both sides reported movement in the contract dispute between the New Paltz Board of Education and the New Paltz teachers following the meeting between the two groups and PERB conciliator Irwin Kelly week.

The negotiations have been going on since last April, according to Board of Education President Donald Martin.

The two sides will meet with Kelly Monday in the school district offices at 3 p.m. Ronald Noelle, the teachers' negotiator, said it was possible the dispute will be resolved at that meeting. Martin was not willing to go quite that far, but did say he hoped it would be over "soon". Noelle has charged that the entire package originally offered by the school board represented about a 9 per cent increase, which Martin said Noelle has ignored publicly.

The salary offer made by the board last April "was both just and justified," Martin said.

The salary index in the New Paltz system starts out low but ends up high. Martin said the B.A. scale put the teachers only eighth or ninth in the county, but the masters scale was first or second.

There is additional pressure to end the dispute and get a contract signed. The two sides will present their demands to each other in December and the negotiations will start all over again in January, said Martin.

He said the offers the board made at last week's meeting would make the New Paltz teachers the second highest paid in the county.

The board had held to its starting salary offer of $7,400 from April to last week. Martin said the new offers made by the board were for a starting salary of $7,550 but would make adjustments in the index and cut out the tenure increment.

The other offer made by the board was for a starting salary of $7,625, but with last year's index and elimination of the tenure increment.

The tenure increment costs the district about $24,000 per year, according to Martin.

He said he noticed Town Constable Efrain Melendez had pulled a car over, and was in the process of making an arrest. The man arrested was Martin O'Connell, and as O'Connell's car was being driven away from the curb by a friend of O'Connell's who was accompanying him, Kulseng said he stopped the car by rapping on the window. He then asked what was going on. Melendez, according to Kulseng, told him it was none of his business.

Kulseng said he told Melendez he wasn't talking to him, and Melendez arrested him. Kulseng told The Freeman there was more to the incident, but he was not able to say more on the advice of counsel.

Kulseng was taken to the police station and questioned. He was represented by Attorney Barry S. Wine until the arraignment last night, where he was represented by Francis Martocci.

At Martocci's request, the arraignment was adjourned until this Friday.

After he was robbed of $40, McSpirt went with the pair to Frank and Ed's Bar on Broadway at Cedar Street, where the letter carrier expected to get more money to meet demands of the pair, who fled after they didn't get any money.

Marshall and his accomplice reportedly left in McSpirt's car which was wrecked when it went out of control and crashed into a utility pole on Broadway at West Chestnut Street. The youths left the car and fled on foot.

ROSENDALE
Norman Keator, 23, of Box 24, Stone Ridge, sustained head injuries Friday night when his car crashed into a sign pole along Route 32 in Rosendale.

It was reported that Keator apparently fell asleep at the wheel of his car while in was proceeding south on Route 32 down a steep hill. He reportedly crashed into several road signs and then struck a large pole supporting a service station sign.

Giants Favored in Opener

By JOHN G. GRIFFIN

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI)—The San Francisco Giants, after a day to get over their scary N. L. East, were slight favorites at 5-6 to win the best-of-five playoffs and a berth in the World Series today in the opening game of the National League playoffs starting a week from today.

pitching against Pirate Steve Blass. However, the well-rested Pirates, runaway winners of the three-of-five playoffs and a berth in the World Series, were favored at 5-6 to win the best-of-five playoffs and a berth in the World Series today in the opening game of the National League playoffs starting a week from today.

will be plenty of slugging in the showdown that starts at Candlestick Park at 1 p.m. PDT (4 p.m. EDT). "I'll tell you one thing," said Danny Murtaugh, "Ain't no body gonna be pitching any game of the season Thursday night because of a pulled muscle in his side and Giant manager Charlie Fox wasn't about to take chances by returning him to the lineup too soon.

"I don't want Bobby to play today if his side still hurts," said Fox. "I'd rather he took an extra day off and then came back healthy."

Dave Kingman, who filled in for Bonds Thursday and slammed an important two-run homer for the Golden Gate team in its clinching 5-1 victory over the San Diego Padres, will get the call in right field again.

"Kingman showed he can play under pressure, and I don't think we lose much with him in there in Bonds' place," said Fox.

Righthanders Perry (16-12) and Blass (15-8) get their starting assignments in the opening game with plenty of rest. Despite the Giants' wild scramble to stave off the onrushing Los Angeles Dodgers in the closing weeks of the season, Fox was able to keep his staff from getting jumbled and weary. Perry goes into this opener off three days rest and Blass has had five days rest.

The belief is that if the Giants had clinched their division as early as the Pirates did in the East, Fox would have preferred to have Juan Marichal pitch the opening game of the playoffs. However, in a nip-and-tuck race Fox maneuvered so that Marichal would be able to pitch the last game of the season if the division pennant came down to that one game—that's exactly what happened, and Fox's strategy paid off as Marichal won the big one with a five-hitter.

Now Fox plans to have John Cumberland pitch the second game of the playoffs and have Marichal ready with three days rest when the playoffs, after a day off Monday, switch to Pittsburgh for the third game on Tuesday. For the Pirates, Murtaugh has 19-game winner Dock Ellis, starting pitcher in this year's All-Star game, ready for the second, and ex-Cardinal Nelson Briles to oppose Marichal in the third.

As in the past, the argument now comes up whether a team which clinched a pennant early has an advantage in the post-season play-offs. There's no doubt the Pirates are physically more rested than the Giants, but have they possibly gone stale—lost their competitive edge—while waiting for the Giants and Dodgers to settle their scrap?

But McNally said Blue flashed his old form when he pitched 12 scoreless innings in his last two starts and he said, "you'll see him throwing hard against the Orioles."

Williams estimated that Blue threw the fast ball 95 per cent of the time early in the season but throws it 85 per cent now because, "he's getting his breaking stuff over."

If the Orioles — a 13-10 underdog in the best-of-five series — are to have a realistic chance, it's considered a must for Blue to win the opening game. In the nine games the club played without Blue, Baltimore had a 7-2 edge. Baltimore Manager Earl Weaver will start lefthander Dave McNally, 21-5, despite a 36-day stint on the disabled list with bad elbows, against the A's. Even though McNally has reached the 20 victory mark for four consecutive years, he's been overshadowed by Blue this season.

But McNally admits, "if I'd had the kind of year he's had at his age, I would have gotten the same kind of publicity."

The lineup that Weaver will start will include seven of the nine players that manager Hank Bauer started in the first game of the 1966 World Series against the Los Angeles Dodgers. Merv Rettenmund in left and Mark Belanger at short are the new additions in place of Curt Blefary—now with the A's—and Luis Aparicio.

It's Blue Against McNalley

Rain Threat at Baltimore

By VITO STELLINO
UPI Sports Writer
BALTIMORE (UPI)—The weatherman was threatening to steal the spotlight from Vida Blue today.

Both the Orioles and the Oakland A's had to cancel workouts Friday because of the rain, remnants of Hurricane Ginger, which pelted the tarp-covered field although it cleared up late in the day.

The Orioles already have had 14 rainouts this season and wound up playing a 158-game schedule because four other rained out games—including a July 29 contest when Blue was scheduled to pitch—were never replayed.

But did pitch against the Orioles twice early in the season and he beat them, 1-0, and 2-1, on a pair of four-hitters enroute to his glittering 24-8 record that made him the sensation of the baseball season.

The long season seemed to take its toll on the 22-year-old lefthander and he was 1-2 the final month of the season after owning a 23-6 mark on Aug. 29. He also wasn't in any mood Friday for speculating on whether he thought he could beat the Orioles again.

"I'll just go out and pitch," Blue said in the Orioles' dressing room Friday. "I'll throw the ball and if they hit it, they do, and if they don't, they don't."

Blue then said, "don't start asking me questions because I'm not going to answer them. I'm going back to the hotel and get some rest." When asked by a group of reporters why he wouldn't talk, Blue said, "my reasons, Vida Blue's reasons."

Asked if he was uptight, Blue said, "What's uptight?" However, Manager Dick Williams insists that Blue's arm is sound and he's regained the form he showed earlier in the season. "Velocitywise, he's not as fast as he was at the first of the year but knowledge-wise and control-wise, he's much better," Williams says.

Sal Bando, the club's third baseman, admits the team had "some doubts" about Blue in mid-September. "He wasn't throwing the ball as hard as he was before. Guys were getting in hits off him who couldn't touch him before. They were even getting hits off him with two strikes," Bando said.

But Bando said Blue flashed his old form when he pitched 12 scoreless innings in his last two starts and he said, "you'll see him throwing hard against the Orioles."

Williams estimated that Blue threw the fast ball 95 per cent of the time early in the season but throws it 85 per cent now because, "he's getting his breaking stuff over."

Dallas-Washington Is Top NFC Drama

The Dallas-Washington drama tomorrow might be titled, "After the Fall." One of the teams will fall from grace — the special grace of the unbeaten.

Dallas is 2-0 and the Redskins are off to the same quick start under new head coach George Allen. There's always the possibility of a tie of course, 10 over New Orleans (1-1) and Cincinnati (1-1) by 1 over Green Bay (1-1).

Oakland (1-1) is given a chance to hand Cleveland (2-0) its first loss in an AFC clash on national television (ABC 9:00 p.m. EDT) Monday night that winds down the third week of the season. The Raiders are picked by three.

The Washington defense, which has limited its first two opponents to a total of 20 points — a conference low — will be severely tested by a Dallas offense that has scored a total of 91 points in its first two victories, including 42 last week against Philadelphia.

The Cowboys also have a couple of other streaks going for them. They've won 15 of their last 16 games since the 10th game of last season and have taken the last six contests with the Redskins.

Washington, on the other hand, is seeking to win its first three games of a season for the first time since 1947. And Dallas is 0-3 against teams coached by George Allen, who defeated the Cowboys while mentor of the Los Angeles Rams.

All of these fancy figures won't mean much once the real hitting starts, however.

By that time, it will all get a lot more basic. Can Billy Kilmer, who had a fine game in the 'Skins' 30-3 rout of the Giants last week, pass accurately against that awesome Dallas defense that intercepted seven Philadelphia passes? Can Larry Brown, bothered by a hand injury, be an effective runner? Is Roger Staubach sufficiently recovered from the mild concussion he suffered in last week's game? Who will win the aerial showdown between Cowboy defenders Herb Adderley, Mel Renfro, Cornell Green and Charley Waters and Redskin receivers Charley Taylor (Two 'td catches against the Giants), Roy Jefferson and Jerry Smith?

It's early in the year, true. But this one may settle a lot. It could make clear just how strong Allen's outfit of Tagalongs is going to be. Or it could prove even more clearly that the Cowboys of coach Tom Landry are finally moving with precision toward the greatness that has been predicted for them for so long.

But McNally admits, "if I'd had the kind of year he's had at his age, I would have gotten the same kind of publicity."

Arlington's Booters Zip Kingston Threat

ARLINGTON High's soccer powerhouse rebuffed Kingston's threat to its Dutchess County Scholastic League (DCSL) supremacy with a decisive 5-0 victory here Friday.

It was the fourth straight league win for the Admirals. Kingston's record is now 3-2 overall and 2-2 in the DCSL. "We didn't play our best game," said Coach John Hunter of Kingston. "We didn't go to out Arlington's center halfback, the ball. They got the jump on us and we never caught up. Arlington victory. 'He's one of the best middle field players I have ever seen,'" said Hunter.

Jim Farmiere, Arlington's inside left, scored two goals, and a substitute, Ron Burger, stunned the Kingston defense with two fourth quarter tallies.

Mackey, the center forward, put Arlington on the board one minute, 13 seconds after the opening kickoff. Despite the Farmiere-Mackey heroics, Coach Hunter singled out Arlington's center halfback, the ball. They got the jump on us and we never caught up. Arlington victory. "He's one of the best middle field players I have ever seen," said Hunter.

Seeger had 19 goalie saves for Kingston and Schmalberger had a 3-1 edge in corner kicks.

Ali, Mathis Ink Papers

NEW YORK (AP) — Buster Mathis, the blimp-built heavyweight, will fight again after a layoff of some 2½ years, and he'll fight Muhammad Ali.

That's what Bob Arum, president of Top Rank, Inc., said Friday at a news conference.

"This is the biggest chance of my life," the 265-pound Mathis said of the fight scheduled for 12 rounds in the Houston Astro-dome Wednesday, Nov. 17.

"I'm reviving these people," said Ali in reference to Jimmy Ellis, whom he stopped in his previous fight, and Mathis. Ellis had engaged in only three fights in 17 months before meeting Ali last July.

The fight knocks out Ali's announced match with Mac Foster, Nov. 29 in Tokyo.

"The people didn't get up the money," Ali said of the Tokyo fight.

But a spokesman for the Japanese promoter said he felt the fight still would be held, early next year.

Arum said Ali will get a guarantee of $300,000 against 40 per cent of all receipts for the closed-circuit television bout against Mathis and the Peers Management, which handles Mathis, is putting up $200,000 of the guarantee. Mathis will receive 15 per cent of all revenues.

Although he did not give any reason for abandoning the 24-hour sports car race, France may see the hand writing on the wall.

There has been growing pressure in recent months by both drivers and manufacturers to limit the duration of championship races to six hours or less. If such a move is approved by the International Federation of Auto Racing, it would likely kill such races as the 12 hours of Sebring and the 24-hours or Le Mans.

SEA ISLAND, Ga. (UPI)—Mrs. Carolyn Cudone, a 53-year-old housewife from Myrtle Beach, S.C., won her fourth straight United States Golf Association Senior Women's Golf Championship Friday.

Mrs. Cudone scored a one-stroke victory over Mrs. Ann Gregory, who narrowly missed a hole-in-one on the 17th hole.

DAYTONA BEACH, Fla. and other manufacturers when (UPI)—The 24-hours of Daytona, the longest sports car race in America, has been scrapped for a weekend sports car extravaganza that will have five different races over the International Speedway's 3.81-mile road course.

Mike Wants to Stay in Baseball

By IRA FUSFELD

KINGSTON Mike Ferraro says that staying in baseball is his main concern even if it means remaining in the minor leagues. The Kingston native has just completed one of the most "satisfying" years of his career. His team, the International League's Rochester Red Wings, won the pennant and then beat Denver for the Little World Series title. And Ferraro was named the league's all-star third baseman for a record setting fourth straight year while hitting .272 and committing only four errors in 125 games.

"It was a great year for us," Mike reflected Friday, "and it was a great year fielding wise for me." Ferraro set a Rochester mark by going 61 games in a row without a miscue at third. "I didn't hit as high as was expected, but I was sick in the middle of the season. It was also a great year because it was the first time I ever played in the Junior World Series."

Yet despite all this Ferraro doesn't see any move to the majors in his future. "Anything can happen, you just keep playing with the thoughts that it will happen. I would like to go back to the minors I'd like to be with time in the major leagues and with teams, such as his old Yankee squad, looking for third basemen it would appear that Mike would be needed by some one."

However no deal has materialized and Mike isn't letting it bother him, saying that he doesn't even read the box scores to see who's playing third on the different big league clubs. Ferraro started his career in 1967 Ferraro started with the International League entry in Syracuse but soon he was in Spokane as a result of the Yankees bringing up Roy White. Mike batted .296 and was invited to spring training in 1968.

That March Ferraro won the Dawson Award as the top rookie in the Yankee camp and was named third baseman on opening day when New York met California.

But after 11 games Ferraro was dropped to Syracuse as yielded first place to Judd United Press International re-Grosshans (12.52), but won over New Paltz, 26 to 29. Ira Hill only one hit in his last 26 at bats as his average dwindled to .145. He lost his starting position to Bobby Cox three weeks ago.

Manager Ralph Houk said he would like to see Ferraro play some second base at Syracuse so he might make the club later as a utility infielder.

Ferraro was far from a utility infielder at Syracuse as he was named all-star third baseman for the first time and hit .293. Just when it seemed that Ferraro would get another shot at the Yankees, he was purchased by the Seattle Pilots in the expansion draft prior to the 1969 season.

He had four pinch hitting at bats with Seattle when the Pilots sent him to Vancouver. Only Ferraro refused to go and soon he was traded to Rochester. He's been there ever since, each time being chosen all star third baseman and putting together .279, .304, and .272 seasons.

And while Ferraro waits to see if 1972 will mean another year with the Red Wings or a new shot in the majors he'll be in town working for Andy Murphy in the City Recreation Commission.

One thing for sure is that Mike Ferraro will be in baseball some place in 1972.

Cabell, Shurter, Stay Set Records

KINGSTON Friday was a spectacular day for the area's high school cross country stars.

Three course records were established. Coleman High and Red Hook remained undefeated in Ulster County Athletic League (UCAL) competition and Kingston High edged arch rival, Newburgh Free Academy, 27-29.

John Cabell of Kingston set his first course record, shaving 11 seconds off the standard over the tough 2.4 mile NFA layout. He was clocked in a speedy 11:19. The old record of 11:30 was set by NFA's crack runner, Kevin O'Shea in 1970.

Cabell's superb performance sparked Kingston's first victory over Newburgh in eight meetings (regular and post-season) in four years and gave the Young Lions 3-0 record, the best cross country start in years.

Kingston scorers besides Cabell were Bill Krempel, 4th; Keith White, 5th; Steve Schellenkamp, 6th; and Dan Kelley, 11th.

"We wanted to win this one badly," said Coach Ron Gabriele. "Not only because they are our arch rivals, but mainly to prove that the first meet double victory over Roosevelt and Monticello was no fluke."

Gary Shurter of Pine Bush set a new standard of 12:55 on the revamped Panther layout, but Coleman High's fast improving harriers easily out-classed their hosts. Shurter was the No. 1 runner in the UCAL last season.

Coleman's first runner across the finish line was junior Paul Schiller in a 12:33 clocking. "Schiller has finished first for the Statesmen in every race this season," Coach Ken Ward pointed out. "He seems to be getting stronger as he goes along."

However, it wasn't Schiller alone who was responsible for the Coleman victory. Pine Bush captured first and third places but Coleman assured its victory by sweeping fourth through eighth place.

The Coleman pack included co-captain Dave McCluskey, Kevin Post, co-captain Don Tegeler, Don Kelly and Mark Rioux. Coach Ward noted that "the Coleman pack is back to the way it was last season, and this win over Pine Bush is very encouraging."

The Statesmen travel to Red Hook Monday for a triangular meet with Liberty and Red Hook. "This could be a big gest race of the season," Coach Ward commented.

The Statesmen are now 3-0 in the UCAL and 4-1 overall. Onteora High's John Stay was clocked for a new course record of 10:48, but Marlboro High turned back the Indians, 26-29.

Tim Schussler of Onteora placed second in 11 minutes flat, but the Dukes swept the next four places and the 8th spot to nail down the victory.

John Simmons was first across the line for Marlboro in 11 minutes, 3 seconds, as the Dukes' ace, John Neilsen, reportedly suffering from the flu finished fourth in 11:04.

UCAL newcomer Red Hook continued to make mince meat of Ulster County opposition, crushing Rondout Valley, 20-41.

Realistic Figures

To commercial elements in Europe, President Nixon's projected visit to China is that of the advance man for American trading interests almost mesmerized by the prospect of 750 million Chinese customers. This suspicious attitude is dwelt on at length by The London Times in a recent issue emphasizing Hong Kong trade.

The Times reviews Sino-American commercial relations beginning with Yankee traders of the 19th century, bolstered by the "open door policy" by which "America sought to safeguard her conquest of the market through the preservation of Chinese territory." And it recalls American aid to China in the Second World War with the flow of 200,000 American civilian and military personnel to China, and how "the loss" of China to the Communists in 1949 brought on a massive national debate and feelings of recrimination in the United States.

In April this year, the American Chamber of Commerce in Hong Kong surveyed its members and found 83 per cent interested in trade with China, of whom more than half said, "not at the expense of trade with Korea and Taiwan." Chinese trade is tied to political consideration and this may reduce trade with China.

Finally, The Times lists China's total trade with 36 non-Communist nations in 1969 at $1,446,300,000, whereas Hong Kong imported $385 million from the United States in 1970, 30 per cent of all of China's imports from 36 non-Communist nations. These figures are intended to warn Americans to be realistic about the China market. The potential is large, but as long as trade is centrally controlled by the government, it will not be realized for many years.

Man and the Weather

Next time the conversation gets around to the weather, and you see an opening to contribute that old saw about "everybody talks about the weather but nobody does anything about it"—don't. It isn't correct any longer. Man is doing something about it, or so says a 30-member global panel of ecological experts whose report was sponsored by the United Nations Conference on Human Environment, and has just submitted.

This panel says the climate is changing because of what man is doing with fossil fuels, such as coal and petroleum. It isn't that man deliberately set about to "do something about it"; it's just that, without him trying or intending, he is doing something about it because of the way he lives.

The heat, gases and solid particles from these fuels, are falling in the Arctic Regions, raising temperatures there, and causing some of the ice to melt. The ice around the Polar Cap, the thinner layers, that is, turns to water, and this tends to allow the Gulf Stream's warm waters to continue northward, whereas previously they were deflected eastward to warm Europe's coasts.

MAY-OCTOBER—Averell and Pamela first met in London in March, 1941. He was 49, she was 21. Thirty years later, Averell Harriman, the ambassador-at-large, now 79, and Pamela

The panel is sure that man has changed the climate of large regions of the earth; it suspects, but isn't quite so sure, that he is having some influence on global climate itself.

This Polar Ice Cap melting—is it dangerous? Could be, say the experts, but such a development is not in prospect. The end of the thinner Polar Ice—that's what is melting now—is a possibility within the next 100 years; of course, it would take far longer for these changes to melt the entire Polar Ice Cap, but if that ever did happen, it's estimated that the world ocean level would be raised some 23 feet. That could spill over into a lot of cellars.

Obviously, that's something for somebody other than we earthlings of the seventies to fret over. The thing of immediate worry is that whenever you chip in a conversational tidbit about the weather, you now have to remember to say that "everybody talks about the weather and man is doing something about it—though unintentionally."

Doesn't sound as sparkling as the old way, does it?

Digby Churchill Hayward, now 51, were married the other day in New York. With man's life-expectancy, it shouldn't embarrass Ave to be wished a long and happy wedding life.

Patent Bills Leaked to Lobby

Jack Anderson Says

WASHINGTON — While a Senate subcommittee considers a multi-billion dollar anti-trust loophole on patents, the subcommittee's trusted chief counsel has been slipping the patent lobby restricted data from committee files.

The $33,000-a-year chief counsel, Tom Brennan, has, without the knowledge of the subcommittee's chairman or members, provided the lobby with copies of a staff version of the bill creating the patent loophole.

The bill is still under consideration by the committee. Yet Brennan has brazenly assured the American Patent Law Association that it will be out in time for him to brief the group on it at its October 21 meeting.

The bill is sponsored by Sen. John McClellan, D-Ark., and contains amendments by Sen. Hugh Scott, R-Pa., the ranking committee Republican. It has undergone vast transformations since its introduction and has been opposed wholly or in part by anti-trust lawyers in the Justice Department, the Federal Trade Commission and Ralph Nader.

The rich patent lawyers fiercely deny it, but many opponents feel the bill would allow huge corporations to flay consumers with practices that would be criminal under present anti-trust laws.

The bill would leave the consumer unprotected against giant patent cartels which would be free to fix prices and destroy competition by dividing up markets, the consumer men argue. In the guise of clarifying the patchwork patent laws, they say, the new bill would allow corporations to squeeze billions over the years from consumers and small companies.

Nevertheless, Brennan has connived with the very lobby his subcommittee is supposed to scrutinize. His activities are detailed in astonishingly frank documents from the lobby's own files.

On August 16, for example, Phillips Petroleum's veteran patent expert, Paul Gomory (who is also chairman of the local bar association's Patent Law Committee) sent a select group of fellow patent lawyers an unusual packet of information. It was for "strictly personal use," Gomory cautioned in an enclosed note.

The packet contained a staff version of the bill which, Gomory said, "was made available to me by Tom Brennan."

"Tom Brennan expects (the bill) to be voted on and reported out by the subcommittee soon after Congress convenes. I am informed by Tom that this version of the bill is final but for some amendments."

Gomory's note then surprisingly admitted that the key provisions of the bill "originated with the Tuesday Group."

This is the nickname for an elite corps of the patent lobby which holds Tuesday meetings. And Gomory's note said further that an offshoot, "Tuesday-2 group" was "actively reviewing and revising the language" of the bill — a little like a group of hungry foxes setting their own quota for chicken consumption.

Brennan, to make sure that the national patent lobby also got word of what was going on in the inner sanctum of his subcommittee, sent copies of his marked-up bill to at least four other top patent lobby groups.

When we reached him at his Capitol Hill office, Brennan rejected our suggestions that there might be something wrong with sending material, which he properly sent to staffs of committee members, to the patent lobby, but not to the public. "That's a red herring," he huffed. Brennan said his assurance that the bill would be passed in time for his speech was only an "estimate." And he denied that when he leaves his 11-year post with the subcommittee shortly that it will be to practice patent law.

Gomory lengthily defended both the bill and his dealings with Brennan.

"I wouldn't be caught dead with something I'm not supposed to have," he said of the committee documents. Brennan had only sent them out for his and other patent lawyers' comments, he insisted.

Addicts Speak

To keep heroin out, U.S. bases in South Vietnam won't allow most Vietnamese on the premises. But Vietnamese military police, who come and go as they please, have been smuggling in wholesale lots of heroin.

This charge has been made by Rep. John Murphy, D-N.Y., in a private report to the House and Interstate and Foreign Commerce Committee. The report summarizes his findings in Vietnam and his interviews with GI addicts.

Quoting an addicted Air Force sergeant from Ben Hoa, Murphy alleges "Vietnamese military police would bring in 200 vials (of heroin) a week. The Vietnamese MPs had access to the base, and the Air Force pusher would meet them and make the exchange. Two hundred bottles sold for $6 a bottle."

Vietnamese who were barred from the bases would approach GIs in jeeps to hustle heroin. An addict just back from Vietnam, now being treated at Lackland Air Force Base, Tex., told Murphy that Vietnamese troops in the field "would come up to our vehicles and press a thumb to their nose in a 'snorting' fashion, indicating, 'Do you want some heroin?'"

Here are other verbatim quotes that Murphy picked up from GI addicts:

"My habit in Vietnam was $20 a day. Here (in the U.S.) it is two Sony hi-fi sets and a half dozen whiffs — all, of course, stolen and resold."

"I tried the Air Force amnesty program in Vietnam three times. I would get detoxed, released, and told to return to my unit. But the first thing I did was go downtown and get a fix. The amnesty program was a joke."

"The Air Force started to give us massive doses of thiorazine (a tranquilizer) in Vietnam because some of us were litter cases going through withdrawal. The doses were too much. On the flight back to the States, there were two addicts who went into cardiac arrest, and we had to make an emergency landing in the Philippines to save them."

"I worked at an Air Force base in Vietnam, used heroin and did my job good. But some of those pilots were 'juicers' (alcoholics) and sometimes we had to carry them to the plane and dump them in the cockpit and practically point the plane down the runway."

An Army nurse told Murphy that "the marijuana smoke on some of the flights home is so thick the air turns blue."

Murphy urged that hopeless addicts be discharged from the service and sent to civilian treatment centers. And he has asked the Air Force to "de-brief" returning GI addicts on where they got heroin in Vietnam and to send this intelligence back to the U.S. military authorities in Vietnam.

War of the Tattletale Gray

David Lawrence Says

Strike Legislation

WASHINGTON — Political considerations can block legislation from which there is a grave need in America today if the public interest is to be protected.

Everyone knows that Congress has failed to pass legislation to stop strikes which injure innocent parties without anything being done about it. President Nixon has expressed clearly his concern that the "National Interest" has been hurt during the long period of negotiation which has failed to settle the dock strike on the West Coast. He said a few days ago:

"I think what has happened in this dispute, coupled with what happened in the railroad dispute, indicates the urgency for consideration of that legislation, because the country cannot continue to afford stoppages in these key areas which do not reach, in the case of the dock strike, at times the requirements for imposition of the Taft-Hartley Act — although Taft-Hartley is a possibility here is the situation goes on — but which nevertheless cause very great injury to many people in our society."

The President pointed out that two years ago he had recommended to Congress new legislation covering labor relations in the whole field of transportation. He declared that the strike this year of the longshoremen on the West Coast — with the possibility of another dock strike on the East Coast — give added urgency to the need for Congressional action. "Only in recent weeks have any hearings been held by committees of the House or the Senate."

But why has Congress hesitated? It is well known that a large number of members have been helped by financial contributions made through committees established by labor organizations. Lists of the members who have received direct aid for their campaigns from labor have been published. The impression conveyed is that virtually a majority in both houses is under some obligation to the labor side.

Certainly whenever bills affecting labor unions have been before Congress in the past, opposition has been encountered and laws have been finally enacted only after prolonged effort. It is many years, moreover, since any important legislation to help prevent strikes or to aid in settling them has been tackled by Congress. Yet, the problems have increased, and there has been relatively little governmental intervention. This is, of course, due to the lack of power which the executive branch of the government feels that it has available.

An equitable means of settling strikes could be devised by governmental boards established for such a purpose. Congress could pass a law making it necessary for intervention to take effect immediately after a strike has been called in any large industry. The law could provide that at least a 30-day notification of an intention to strike would have to be given after negotiations had failed to bring agreement, so that companies in businesses affected could adjust their operations accordingly and also so that the government might have an opportunity to intervene and prevent the strike altogether.

There is no doubt that new legislation is required. The doubts that exist as to how much the Taft-Hartley Act actually covers have made it possible for big strikes to occur without any assurance that, even by invoking this particular statute, any relief could be obtained through the courts. Also, one of the weaknesses of the Taft-Hartley Act is that, when an injunction is issued, it merely delays a strike for 80 days. If a settlement hasn't been reached in that time, the strike can be resumed. New legislation, the President feels, is required to overcome this difficulty and also to make it possible for intervention to include some specific method of mediation and even arbitration.

Henry J. Taylor Says

Reminiscences of Hirohito

shielded his eyes behind their thick lenses from the Throne Room's glare and graciously did at once all he could to soften the elaborate rituals and rubrics that hedge him in.

The Emperor had just come from venerations at the stone lanterns and cryptomerias of Japan's Ieyasu memorial shrine, famous as the place where birds are mass-hypnotized. The Japanese have a special sound — the kai shout — which apparently brings instantaneous hypnosis. When uttered at a selected tree the birds will fall asleep and topple to the ground until released by another sound. But, fresh from Ieyasu, the Mikado had changed to Western clothes. And at the conclusion of the discussion, his ancestors' portraits gazing down from the calm eternity of their gilded frames, he inscribed and gave to me his first photograph ever taken in Western clothes.

"I am the most liberated of all Japanese," he said with a pleasant smile. "I was always required to live in a palace separate from the Empress and our children. Now we live together in the joys of Western family life."

Speaking in his quiet, scholarly way His Imperial Majesty agreed, however, that there are great and widely misunderstood limits regarding the Western influences on his ancient nation. Moreover, in the private part of our discussion the Emperor was surprisingly outspoken about this.

The Emperor remarked that "mainland Asia, which flanks our islands, is like a great human hand with 12 fingers." China is the body of the hand; Korea, the Vietnam areas, Malaya, the Burma peninsula, etc., are the fingers. The Philippines and Indonesia, an archipelago with 3,000 islands spanning a zone wider than the United States also flank Japan — a country smaller than California.

The Japanese easily understood that their ancient civilization was a decorated paper screen, too flimsy to defend them. However, even this primary understanding came not from the West but from neighboring Korea. The first iron-clad war vessel which startled Japan was invented in the 16th Century by Korean Gen. Yi Soon Sin. It was called "The Tortoise Boat," and enabled General Yi to defeat Japan's great General Hideyoshi in Chinha Bay.

The shadow of giant China, in turn, now Red, has flowed through all Japanese wars for centuries. And for a full century, beginning in 1840, Japan encroached on China. But China herself has been absorbing invaders for 2,500 years — intermarrying with them and making them Chinese.

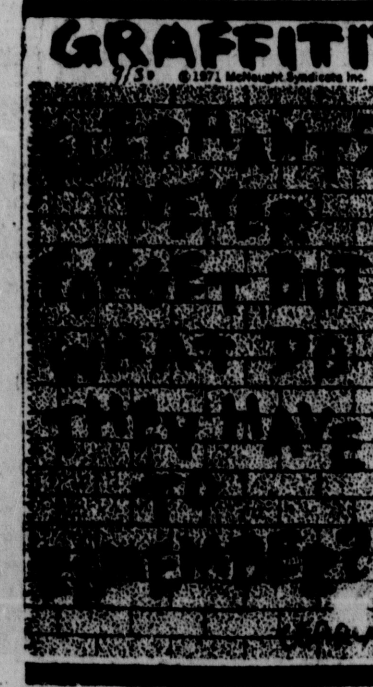

In July, 1853, U.S. Commodore Matthew Perry's flotilla of black ships opened the misty islands of Japan's Mikado to the colonial realities of the Victorian Age, true. But the general European mechanical breakthrough did not occur until after the performance of tanks in World War I, for the Europeans had not experienced the broad effects of Henry Ford's "Tin Lizzie" and Japan, for her part, was without that breakthrough almost entirely.

Europeans and Americans did not teach Japan, Japan, of herself, chose to learn from Europe and America military, mechanical, industrial and financial methods of equipment and organization which proved effective.

Japan imported mechanical sciences as the Turks years before had imported European artillery. This hardly could be called "influencing" Japan, unless, indeed, England could be called influenced by China because she imported tea from China.

Prior to even the lifetime of Emperor Hirohito, who was born as late as 1901, where is the European or American philosopher, speechmaker, poet or churchman who remade anything consequential in Japan?

What's the occasion all about in Ulster County? In various communities public officials with 4-Hers and leaders will be announcing the Oct. 3-9 observance in public proclamation. Clubs will be bridging the gap by extending the 4-H message through their efforts.

through 4-H County Medals, plain to the 4-Hers the workings Company, summed up the 4-H Lisa and Paula, for example, of various parts of the state goals and philosophy when he said: "4-H is an action-oriented, practical, learn-by-doing program that helps young people learn how to make a living, how to make sound judgments and how to become good citizens of their community and their country."

Both girls were given an opportunity to relate their learning to the public audience at the New York State Fair, Nelson A. Rockefeller and Assemblage H. Clark Bell. They gave of their time to extend the 4-H message through their efforts.

October days signal such events as homecoming week ends on college campuses across the land. For one Kingston girl the Homecoming Weekend at State University of New York at Albany will be one of excitement. Claudia Zimolzak of Kingston, a junior at SUNY, Albany is in the running for Homecoming Queen. Selection of the queen and the Freshman Princess will be made next Friday night midway through a folk blues concert.

Other Homecoming weekend events at the Albany campus include a parade on Saturday, football and soccer games and parties round the clock right through Sunday.

Other area students are signing up for classes. Thomas Stanmyer, son of Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Stanmyer Jr., of 32 Church Street, New Paltz, was among 1,125 students registering for the 1971-72 academic year at Northfield Mount Hermon School, East Northfield, Mass. Northfield Mount Hermon is an independent secondary coeducational school and is one of the largest independent boarding schools in the country.

Jewel King, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Lewis King, Lily Lake Road, Highland, has started her studies as a freshman at the Syracuse University School of Nursing. Jewel is a member of the Highland High School Class of 1971.

While in high school she was active in extra-curricular events. She participated in the junior and senior plays, was a member of the Washington Club, the Choraleers, the History and Biology Clubs, intramural volleyball and basketball and secretary of the yearbook staff. Jewel was a New York State Regents Basic Nursing Scholarship winner.

Another area student in Syracuse these days is Dennis Herwig of 33 Manor Place, Kingston. He is enrolled in the University of New York Upstate Medical Center Schools of Radiologic Technology and Radiation Therapy Technology.

Youth in the News

The two year program leads to the Associate in Applied Science degree and graduates are eligible for licensure by passing the state licensing examination. In quite another field Russell Jacobs of Kingston is a member of the freshman class at Eymard Prep Seminary, Hyde Park. Eymard Prep Seminary offers high school education with eucharistic orientation to students who feel they may wish to aspire to priesthood or brotherhood. The school is operated by the Blessed Sacrament Fathers and Brothers, Apostles of the Eucharist. Jon Fox of West Hurley, a senior at The College of William and Mary in Virginia, who was last week named a President's Aide at the college this week comes in for yet another appointment. He has been selected to serve on the concerts and lectures committee. The college-wide committee is made up of faculty and administrators with student appointees serving with them.

TEEN SCENE Reality and Realigion

By LEI

Young America's religious revival takes many forms, ranging from the "Jesus freaks" of Teen Challenge through the turned-on, tuned-in canonizers of Tim Leary. In between are a legion of teens who feel that the answer may not be revival singing, and it may not be acid—but that they want to tune in on a Power with a capital "P" which they sense.

Some turn to astrology or the I Ching or macrobiotics or speed or spiritism. For some, the seeking is a superficial attempt, verging on the superstitious. For others it becomes an obsession, verging on the fanatical. Teen Challenge members recount vividly how the love of Jesus saved them from drugs, while in some incense-clouded room, someone else is preaching how drugs turned them in to a whole wider plane of awareness. Others search through numerology or vegetarianism. The routes vary, but the quest is the same.

The young are all-too-aware of the hypocrisy of those who go to church one morning a week, and spend the other six and nine tenths days looking out for number one. That is why many of the young are out of the organized religion scene, even though religions are making wide concessions toward making themselves more relevant. All formal religions—whether Zen Buddhist, Catholic, Baptist, Muslim, Jewish, or Hindu are merely means toward the end of encouraging people to live in a constructive manner, so that they may benefit from the life.

The teen years are normally introspective. All teens wonder what the future holds for them, where their strengths and weaknesses lie, and why their lives seem to be developing in certain directions (or, worse yet, seem to be not developing at all.) It is normal for teens to find dissatisfaction with themselves—their looks, background, intelligence, or talents—and to wish to change themselves. As a group, teens wonder "why?" about the most important questions of life, and they search for the answers through many channels—some constructive, and some very dangerous.

Ironically, perhaps as many find the truths they are looking for in "far out" ways as find them in more conventional channels. Perhaps it is the effort of the search, and the acknowledgement that there is something to search for, that is as important as the method of the search. A boy at the turn of the century, faced a mind-blowing decision might have prayed in church for guidance. His grandson might take a brooding walk in the woods, search a book of Oriental wisdom, or have his horoscope read. The goal would be the same—an attempt to tune into a greater force in times of stress.

Two generations ago a girl might have made a bigger production out of whether or not to give a good-night kiss than her granddaughter would make out of moving in with her boyfriend. The question is still the same—one of right or wrong. Our views on morality may change, but morality itself does not change. There is still right, and there is still wrong, and we still know when what we are doing is right or wrong. What is right for us may not have been right for our grandparents or even our friends—but what is wrong for us can never be made right for us by a glib excuse to our conscience.

Youth today seems more willing to accept this fact that we can only be good or bad within the framework of our own lives, and that as we develop, so does our conception of the messages our conscience sends. This puts more responsibility on the individual morality. When one's church has no steeple, and one's table commandments has no numbers one must be even more thoughtful about one's actions. Traditional decisions about school, marriage, work, and honesty are no longer taken for granted. It is up to the individual to plan his own life—benefiting from right decisions, and taking responsibilities for mistakes. Of course, nobody has to make the decisions all alone—there's Something Out There willing to help. If one is willing to ask for the help . . .

COLEMAN—Innovations

KINGSTON The start of the recent school year shows numerous innovations in the John A. Coleman English Department. This year at the Hurley Avenue School, a totally new and interesting program has been initiated on all four levels.

The changes begin on the Freshmen level with a two track system designed to meet the individual students needs. This simply means that a remedial program in reading will advance the slower readers. Remedial work includes a reading lab in addition to the regular literature class. The lab consists of developmental reading machines which allow each student to increase his ability at his own pace. These machines were donated through the cooperation of the Parent Association.

Sophomore English is also on the two track system. American literature is approached through two techniques. One level uses the historical approach tracing American Literature from the Puritans. The second group uses the theme approach studying the various categories of American Literature.

The third year program relies on team teaching for the Regents Level. For example, Lester Lombardi teaches half of each section English literature and vocabulary. At the same time Sister Mary Thomas prepares the other section for the development of composition. Each student has each teacher for two days a week. The remaining day is used for tests, lectures, or movies.

The most outstanding evidence of this new trend is a series of Senior elective courses. A Senior may elect one or more of the following courses: Modern Poetry, Modern Fiction, Mythology, Man and God in Literature, and Independent Study, all of which are one Semester courses. Drama Workshop and Communications are offered as electives for the full school year.

The Communications course instructed by Lombardi is investigating various medias including newspaper, radio, and television. This college preparatory course depends heavily on guest speakers, from the related fields, field trips, and also the use of a new video tape machine and camera.

Mort Laffin and Ira Fustfeld will represent The Freeman, for the journalism aspect of the course. The video tape equipment was purchased from donations from the various clubs and the Student Association. This equipment will be used for student productions in Communications, theater, sports, and for monitoring educational TV.

The English department consists of Sister Mary Walsh, SUU, head of the department, along with Sister Mary Paula, SU, Sister Maureen Gallagher, SU, and Lombardi.

The immediate goal of both staff and students is the improvement of the English curriculum.

College Exams Slated Next Week

More than 2,500 college proficiency examinations will be administered throughout New York State on Oct. 7 and 8, the State Education Department announced today. Approximately 1,650 exams were given in October last year.

Given at various testing centers, the subjects will cover the arts and sciences, education, nursing, and modern languages. Most colleges and universities, said Donald J. Nolan, director of the Division of Independent Study, will grant course credit for acceptable scores on these examinations.

The largest group of applicants, almost 700, applied to take fundamentals of nursing. Following this is medical-surgical with over 350, and psychiatric-mental health nursing, with approximately 300 applicants. Nearly 375 modern language examinations will be given, with Spanish the predominant choice.

Anyone who feels he has college-level knowledge of one or more of the subjects offered, regardless of how he gained that knowledge, is eligible to take the tests. In 1970, several thousand college credits were earned, Nolan said, and many teacher certification requirements were met through CPE's.

Also under the guidance of the Division of Independent Study is the Regents External Degree, proposed by Education Commissioner Ewald B. Nyquist at his inauguration last September.

Doing the Right Thing

By ELIZABETH L. POST
(© 1971, Emily Post Institute, Inc.)

DEAR MRS. POST: Some months ago my girl friend died suddenly, leaving two small children. Now her husband is remarrying. Her parents received an invitation to the wedding, but her mother isn't quite up to going. Her father said he wants to go with his teen-age daughter who was also invited. My friend's mother feels it will look very strange if he goes and she doesn't.

Would it be possible for her to attend the ceremony and not the reception, regardless of what her husband does? She could explain in a note to the bride or to her son-in-law that she gives them her best wishes but just can't bring herself to join in the festivities at this time.

ARLENE

DEAR ARLENE: That is just what she should do. By attending the church ceremony, your friend's mother will publicly show her approval of the marriage, and her personal note to the bride will take care of any questions about her absence at the reception.

It is most important to foster a close relationship with her son-in-law, his wife and the grandchildren, and as I feel that this will get them off to a good start.

DEAR MRS. POST: Our eldest son is to be married, and his fiancée has paid my husband the compliment of asking him to give her away at the wedding ceremony. My father is dead, and there is no other male in her family whom she wishes to ask. Would this be proper? Would it not be in better taste to have a male friend of her family give her away?

MRS. BAINES
DEAR MRS. BAINES: Your husband should accept your future daughter-in-law's invitation to give her away. As you said, it is a great compliment, and since there is no member of her family who could be hurt by the arrangement, it is also in the best of taste. The bride will surely be hurt if your husband refuses, and his acceptance will serve to launch the marriage with the strongest family ties.

Wife Doesn't Like Talk About Trading Her In

DEAR ABBY: When we're out in company, my husband makes remarks like, "I think a man should be able to trade in his wife for a new model, just like he trades in his automobile." Abby, we've been married for 40 years and I don't think this kind of talk is a bit funny. He calls me his "1909 model." I'm not very witty, but I wish I had a snappy comeback for him when he talks like that. Can you think of one?

OLD MODEL
DEAR ABBY: Tell your wisecracker that just because a model is "new" doesn't mean it's better. Then ask him if he's priced a 1909 Rolls-Royce lately.

DEAR ABBY: My sister became a widow a year ago, and out of necessity she returned to work. She has two sons, ages 10 and 12. They are good boys, and have shown themselves to be responsible and obedient. Now the problem:

My sister refuses to give the boys a key to their apartment. She says she's afraid they might lose it or maybe leave the door unlocked and the apartment will be robbed.

Abby, the boys get out of school at 3:30 and their mother doesn't get home until after 5 p.m., and those poor kids have to hang around the building or sit on the sidewalk like a pair of stray dogs until their mother comes home. The apartment building is locked and they can't even get into the hall without a key.

I've pleaded with my sister, but she is stubborn. There are no friends or relatives in the neighborhood the boys can stay with. I'd let them stay with me, but I live in Brooklyn and they live in the Bronx. She trusts you. Say something.

CONCERNED UNCLE
DEAR UNCLE: Your sister should be more concerned about the safety of her sons than her worldly goods, and should realize that the boys are better off inside than outside. In any case, she shouldn't assume that they are incapable of having a key without giving them a chance to prove they are.

DEAR ABBY: I share an office with eight other women. One has a habit which is about to drive us up a wall. She breathes very loudly. It sounds like the cooing of a dove — only it's louder and much more annoying.

We complained to the supervisor who spoke to her about it. She told him she couldn't help it as she suffers from asthma, and he believed her! I think she is just trying to attract attention because if someone whispers, she immediately stops her heavy breathing and breathes normally so she can hear what's being said. Now, you can't tell me "asthma" can be controlled that easily.

How can we shut her up? She can be heard above nine typewriters.

LOUISVILLE
DEAR LOUISVILLE: The best way to shut out annoying sounds is with ear plugs. Of course, you won't be able to hear the telephone, the fire alarm, or the boss when he talks to you but if you believe this woman is making annoying sounds just to attract attention, this solution will attract so much attention that the boss will have to isolate her if he wants to get some work out of the rest of you.

Simple Satin Dress

Jerry Silverman says his firm's collection of simple satin evening dresses, long and short, is in response to women all across the country who have told him, in his travels, "please, no more beads, no heavy embroidery on dresses." His designer, Shannon Rodgers, quotes one distressed woman searching for a simple satin dress: "My husband gave me a beautiful diamond necklace last year. Now he's saying 'Listen, if you're not going to wear it, give it back. I can use the money.'"

Senior Buses Run Wednesday Only

KINGSTON — Approximately 60 Senior Citizens took advantage of the Wednesday Senior Citizen Shopping buses being furnished through the courtesy of the Kingston Rotary Club and the Urban Transit Company in cooperation with the Senior Citizens Advisory Council according to an announcement made by Alexander Yosman, coordinator of the Senior Citizens Advisory Council.

Yosman stressed that this free bus service is provided to Senior Citizens on Wednesdays only. Although a number of problems arose with the time schedule for the first run, Yosman said that the buses will be on schedule at designated stops as posted, in the future.

Yosman asked that all Senior Citizens mark their calendars for Wednesday with the time that the bus will be in their area as a reminder of this service. This is an opportunity for the Senior Citizens to have a day out to do their shopping or just browse through the stores.

In urging the Senior Citizens to use this free shopping bus service that is on a trial basis, he said, "It is only the Senior Citizens of the Community that will indicate the need for continuing this free bus service."

Russian, European Officials Back Rogers' Mid-East Effort

NEW YORK (UPI) — Re-negotiated efforts by Secretary of State William P. Rogers to work out an interim Middle East peace settlement have received the general backing of the Soviet Union, Britain and France.

Officials from the U.S. delegation to the United Nations said today Rogers received varying degrees of encouragement during his meetings this week with the three foreign ministers Andrei A. Gromyko of the Soviet Union, Sir Alec Douglas-Home of Britain and Maurice Schumann of France.

Although the Soviet Union has been skeptical of U.S. efforts to act as an intermediary between Israel and the Arab countries, officials said Gromyko in his meetings with Rogers gave tacit approval of the U.S. mediation attempts.

Rogers, in New York for the U.N. General Assembly meeting, started the latest round of discussions on the Middle East Wednesday by meeting with Egyptian Foreign Minister Mahmoud Riad in Washington. He will talk with Israeli foreign minister Abba Eban on Monday.

The current proposals center around six main points, according to authoritative U.S. sources:

—Any "interim settlement" should be considered as a first step toward a comprehensive, negotiated middle east peace settlement.

—The Middle East cease-fire should be extended for a definite period of at least six months under any interim settlement.

—Egypt should clear and reopen the Suez Canal. Israeli transit rights through the canal, which would be administered by the Egyptians, would be a matter of further negotiation.

—Israeli forces should withdraw from the east bank of the Suez Canal to a point some 15 to 25 miles back from the canal.

—Egypt would be allowed a "presence" on the east bank of the canal, but it would not be military although some police might be permitted.

—Supervisory arrangements should be set up to police any

"interim agreement"—a point which could involve reviving the U.N. Truce Supervisory Organization (UNTSO). It could be expanded to include both U.S. and Soviet forces.

Delegation officials said the United States will have about six weeks to work steadily at the United Nations towards the goals. They said Egypt has made it clear it would not raise the Middle East dispute in the United Nations until mid-November.

CWA Accuses N. Y. Company of Deliberate Harassment

NEW YORK (UPI) — The Communications Workers of America (CWA) has accused the New York Telephone Co. of hiring private security forces to "intimidate" local CWA officials who are leading a 12-week-old strike.

Morton Bahr, vice president of the national CWA said Friday that New York Telephone had hired "dozens" of private detectives to follow shop stewards of the dissident locals. He charged that a $1,000 reward had been offered to those who could apprehend people vandalizing phone company property.

A company spokesman admitted that additional security forces had been hired, but he said the action was taken in response to "numerous cases of vandalism, property damage and harassment of management personnel."

The spokesman strenuously denied that the company had offered any "bounty" to the security forces.

Bahr charged that a union a parked car near the offices of CWA Local 1106 in Rego club Thursday when he tried to photograph two men sitting in Park, Queens.

British Troops Wound Sniper In Violent Belfast Battles

BELFAST, Northern Ireland (UPI)—British troops wounded a sniper in battles with gunmen in Belfast during the night. The fighting capped a day of violence in the city which cost the life of another British soldier.

The army said troops shot and wounded a sniper who fired at them when they moved in to disperse youths battling each other in the Protestant Hall Park Road area. The sniper was seen to fall but escaped, the army said.

In other incidents during the night gunmen machine-gunned two army trucks patrolling the city's Roman Catholic Anderson Town area, and bomb explosions damaged an automobile showroom, a Protestant Orange Order lodge and offices of the British Shipping Federation in the city's dock area.

No casualties were reported.

In any of the incidents but troops were called out to disperse hundreds of angry Protestants who gathered in the city's streets to protest the bombings.

In the Catholic Ardoyne area of Belfast a British soldier was killed by sniper fire in a battle Friday between troops and gunmen which raged as housewives in the area banged garbage cans and youths stoned the soldiers.

The army said troops wounded one of the snipers and later captured him after he dragged himself into a nearby Roman Catholic school.

The dead soldier, Pvt. James Sharp, 22, was the 23rd British trooper killed this year in Northern Ireland in clashes with the outlawed Irish Republican Army. The IRA advocates the forceful unification of the Province with the Catholic Irish Republic.

Lord Carrington, British defense secretary, announced Friday that the Ulster Defense Regiment, a part-time military unit supporting British troops in the Province, would be increased to 10,000 men from its present 6,000-man level.

TV for Buses?

CARSON CITY, Nev. (UPI)—Television may be installed on buses which transport pupils to school from remote areas in Nevada.

John Gamble, deputy state superintendent of public instruction, said a program is being developed by which buses might be equipped with education television or video tapes for viewing by the children.

BERKELEY, Calif. (UPI) — Divorces in California, as expected, decreased in the first six months of 1971, says the state health department.
About 51,900 "dissolution of marriage" decrees were granted, compared with about 56,200 during the same period of 1970. The reduction was anticipated because 1970 figures reflected a big jump when the minimum waiting period for a final judgment was decreased from one year to six months.

Teach to be loyal to good friends since there is a tendency to drop one for another all the time, or run from one interest to the other without completing anything. Give good ethical training early.

"The Stars impel, they do not compel." What you make of your life is largely up to YOU! Carroll Righter's Individual Forecast for your sign for October is now ready. For your copy send your birthdate and $1 to Carroll Righter Forecast, c/o The Daily Freeman, Box 629, Hollywood, Calif. 90018.

LIBRA (Sept. 23 to Oct. 22) you are now capable of improving conditions around you provided you do not try to lord it over others. Good for entertaining in an elegant manner which you enjoy. An ideal evening for this.

Some Upcoming Headliners

HOLLYWOOD (UPI) — Notes to watch television by:

The headliners: Mia Farrow and Hal Holbrook will star on CBS-TV's Friday Night Movie series Oct. 22 in a 90-minute teleplay, "Goodbye, Raggedy Ann," about a young actress driven to the brink of suicide in her struggle to survive in Hollywood. Miss Farrow plays the actress and Holbrook, famous for his one-man show "Mark Twain Tonight!", portrays a not-too-successful writer to whom she turns in every crisis. The director is Fielder Cook, who guided last season's video adaptation of Arthur Miller's "The Price," with George C. Scott.

Mayor John Lindsay of New York City will be the sole guest on Dick Cavett's ABC-TV series Oct. 5 ... Lindsay, mentioned in some quarters as a possible presidential candidate, will also appear this Sunday on CBS-TV's "Face the Nation" ... Former Gov. Edmund G. (Pat) Brown of California makes his acting debut on NBC-TV's "The Bold Ones" Oct. 17, portraying a judge in a tale of an ex-Marine charged with murder.

Ed Sullivan will have a 90-minute nostalgic special on CBS-TV Oct. 17, composed of memorable moments from his long-running vaudeville-style series that ended last season ... title of the broadcast is "The Sullivan Years," and the performers seen in retrospect will include Elvis Presley, The Beatles, Jerry Lewis, Rudolf Nureyev, Margot Fonteyn, Jack Benny, Diana Ross and Sammy Davis ... there will also be segments from the enormously touching show he dedicated to the music of Irving Berlin.

Completing the circle: Yul Brynner became a star in the Broadway musical "The King And I," based on the story title to "Chronolog" Oct. 22. It will offer a feature on a visit to ... then he recreated his role, and his success, in the fine motion picture musical adaptation of "The King And I," with Deborah Kerr ... now it is reported that Brynner is being sought for a possible half-hour CBS-TV comedy series aiming for the 1972-73 season ... title: "Anna And The King Of Siam."

The programs: When NBC-TV's "First Tuesday" news magazine series changes its title to "Chronolog" Oct. 22, it will offer a feature on a visit to a Middle East harem ... if you wonder why video programming often comes out the way it does, consider this: the new boss of original movies for children on ABC-TV next season has a basic network background in sales and advertising, and a degree in business administration ... this doesn't mean he can't, and won't, do the job well, but it is a tipoff to video's essential orientation.

Josephine (Jo) Culbertson was not as great a player as Ely used to claim in his writings. It is doubtful if anyone could be that good.

She was supposed to be conservative, but there were times when she came up with some inspired plays.

Her three no-trump call after North's sign-off at three clubs was decidedly optimistic. In 1934 when this hand was played, the two-club response promised very little and North did not need as much as he held.

Resolution From Prison Superintendents

Oswald Gets Solid Support for Attica Decisions

ALBANY, N.Y. (AP) — The superintendents of New York's penal institutions have expressed solid support for the decisions made by State Correction Commissioner Russell G. Oswald during the inmate uprising at Attica state prison.

The superintendents met here Friday and adopted a resolution that put them on record as backing Oswald's handling of the four-day insurrection last month that resulted in 42 deaths—10 prison employees and 32 convicts.

"We the superintendents of New York State correctional facilities and state hospitals (for the criminally insane) together and individually want to express our full support of the actions taken by you during the tragic situation at Attica Correctional Facility," their joint statement said.

The prison officials also indicated their approval of reform programs that Oswald had advocated since becoming commissioner last Jan. 1.

"Furthermore," their resolution continued, "we think it important for you to know, particularly at this time, that we endorse the programs, directions and goals that you have outlined as the future course for this department."

"You can be sure of our continued, united support and effort to accomplish the goals of progressive, humane and rehabilitative correctional programs."

There are 22 correctional facilities in the state system headed by Oswald.

It was the first meeting of the commissioner and the chief administrative officers of those institutions since the Attica inmate uprising and its quelling by heavily armed state troops and backup personnel on Sept. 13.

The meeting originally was scheduled to take place Thursday and Friday to deal with various programs. But it was cut back to one day, according to an Oswald aide, because of pressures on the commissioner in the wake of the Attica tragedy.

Those in attendance included Vincent Mancusi, the Attica superintendent whom the prison rebels sought to oust as part of their 30 demands. Oswald called the dismissal of Mancusi a "non-negotiable demand."

The high-level meeting, which was given no advance billing, came shortly after Oswald had appealed for "public restraint and patience until all facts can be determined" concerning the Attica rebellion and recent charges related to the treatment of prisoners in the Western New York facility.

Relatives of inmates there told reporters that prisoners had said were beaten and harassed by guards after the riot was quelled.

Oswald maintained that a special panel named by Presiding Justice Harry D. Goldman of the Appellate Division of State Supreme Court in Rochester is "assuring inmate constitutional rights and monitoring staff-inmate relationships."

City Beat

By HUGH REYNOLDS
Freeman City Hall Reporter

THE ASSESSOR—Matthias G. (Mattie) Richardson, one of the truly nice guys at city hall, retired as city assessor on Sept. 29.

Mayor Koenig and Mattie exchanged a few kind words to each other at the gift presentation but it was probably a farewell note from a city hall employee that gave an accurate picture on how people felt about the assessor.

The note cited Richardson for his courteous and efficient service on behalf of city residents but concluded, "you never would agree to lower my assessment."

Richardson, in the words of his successor, Walter Tatarzewski, "tried to do what was right." He tried to handle all cases on their merits; he didn't care what the applicant's politics or "connections" were.

Mattie was at his best when handling senior citizen tax exemption cases. He would always get up from his desk, greet the senior citizen at the door and escort him back to the desk. Very often the person would arrive at city hall confused, apprehensive maybe even a little scared. Mattie would put them at ease and then patiently explain the law and what they had to do to comply with it.

He was a man who cared about people in the finest tradition of public service. He'll be missed.

THE ARTERIALS—Several months ago, the word came out that Gov. Rockefeller could be expected to put on a big push for his transportation bond issue in the fall of the year. The push is on!

The governor, of course, is concerned about mass transportation in the state—it makes his barnstorming tours that much easier—but there's something more immediate in that bond issue: $300 million included in it to balance the 1971-72 state budget. So, the word now is that highway construction throughout the state is in a freeze, including the Kingston-Ulster Arterial and the proposed Albany Avenue Arterial.

"If you want those new roads gentlemen," the latest word goes, "get out and push for that bond issue." We expect to see local Republican leaders pushing very hard during the next month.

POLITICS—According to time-honored political formula, the political season began on Oct. 1.

We get the impression, somehow, that this year a lot of people could care less. Usually, the mayoral races in Kingston set the tone for the city.

This year, there hasn't been much of a race. The Republicans up to now, have claimed that "it's too early" to make any specific charges against the Koenig administration.

This business of "too early" has always irked us. It seems to us that politics should be a year-round endeavor. If someone commits a blunder in July, nail him then, not in mid-October.

In other words politicians should be held accountable at all times for their actions, not just around election time.

The race between Frank Koenig and Bob Murphy for mayor could shape up to the dulllest in years. Murphy has yet to make a public statement, although rumors persist that he's working on some "Hot Stuff."

To quote Al Spada, county chairman at his reelection to the post, Thursday night, "We have an individual who will come forth within the next few weeks and tell what has been happening. He will prove to the people of the City of Kingston that they have been taken!" We presume the "individual" Spada referred to is Murphy. Either that or Spada forgot his name.

If Murphy does come up with something, odds are that Koenig will simply ignore it. In 1969, Jim Tyrrell threw everything at Koenig but the kitchen sink and got nary a rise. We don't see Koenig changing what worked out to be a very successful game plan.

Races for legislator in the city are strictly popularity contests and confusing ones at that. We have 17 candidates running for eight positions. People can vote for eight of them but very often wind up voting for only one or two.

The race for alderman-at-large is another popularity contest with a decided edge to the incumbent, whomever he may be. This year it's Bob Gallo against challenger Bernie Singer, the Republican-Conservative. An incumbent who knows how to keep his mouth shut should be able to retire in office.

HAPPY WALK—Anthony Russo (R), jailed 47 days for his part in the controversial Pentagon Papers leak, happily walks out of the Federal building in Los Angeles with Daniel Ellsberg, who worked with him in making the papers public, after Russo was ordered released from jail and in a precedent shattering ruling, the government was ordered to give Russo a copy of his secret Grand Jury testimony so he can make it public. ## Setback For South Viet Forces in Mekong Delta TAY NINH, Vietnam (AP) — South Vietnamese forces suffered a setback in the Mekong Delta today, military sources said, while other Saigon troops launched a drive to break a week-old North Vietnamese offensive along South Vietnam's border with Cambodia.

The sources said 18 South Vietnamese soldiers were killed and 64 injured during an enemy attack near Kien Thien, a delta town about 112 miles southwest of Saigon. Official spokesmen termed the casualties moderate and said 16 enemy bodies had been counted.

To the northwest, the South Vietnamese struck out in four directions in search of North Vietnamese troops.

One task force headed eastward from the Cambodian rubber plantation town of Khek in another attempt to halt the siege of Fire Base Alpha, five miles away.

Three other battalions formed a three-sided vice designed to crush Hanoi's 200th regiment and end its occupation of the last portion of Highway 22 held by the enemy between Khek and Tay Ninh.

In addition to securing the important supply route, the drive was launched to ease pressure on Fire Base Pace, a U.S. artillery base on Highway 22 nearly astride the Cambodian border.

The base, occupied by long-range U.S. guns and infantry, has been under daily rocket and mortar attack during the battle along the border. It has been reinforced by South Vietnamese guns flown in by helicopter.

As one battalion of South Vietnamese troops headed south from Pace on Route 22, another, spearheaded by armored units, drove north from Thien Ngon five miles away. The third contingent, a force of 500 paratroopers, made an assault aboard U.S. helicopters into jungle just west of Highway 22, hoping to snare the North Vietnamese in the three-sided movement.

There were no immediate reports of fighting. But some helicopter pilots lifting the paratroopers and others flying combat support missions reported taking light ground fire.

The U.S. command in Saigon disclosed the loss of a Cobra gunship shot down near Khek on Friday. The spokesman said the American helicopter was destroyed but both crewmen escaped injury.

However, one American was killed, in a skirmish in Xuan Loc Province, about 30 miles east of Saigon, the command reported. An OH6 observation helicopter was shot down 25 miles southwest of Da Nang, wounding one crewman, the spokesman said.

The allied effort to break the siege of Fire Base Alpha, just across the border, was the second in two days.

A relief column had driven to within two miles of the base on Friday before it bogged down against heavy enemy resistance and pulled back to Khek.

Fighter-bombers and U.S. B52s pounded the enemy's positions around Alpha through the night, field reports said. Some of the bombs exploded within 400 yards of Alpha's perimeter.

necessary for the time being.

Debate continues today. The subject of celibacy emerged during full-scale dialogue on the priesthood Friday with a dozen speakers at the third and largest Synod of Bishops alluding to it or mentioning it outright.

The Pope suggested earlier that he was prepared to accept ordination of married men as priests in areas of the world where there is an acute shortage of priests, especially in Latin America and Asia.

But church liberals long have pressed for a more general relaxation of the 700-year-old church law barring married men from the priesthood.

Moreover, sweeping social, psychological and intellectual changes in many places have inspired a re-ord wave of clerical dropouts.

But Cardinal Joseph Hoffner of Cologne, West Germany, who made the keynote speech Friday, said no further examination of the celibacy issue was needed.

Archbishop Maxim Hermann of the Ukrainian Rite in Winnipeg, Canada, said both celibate and married priests were authentic priests.

Origami... Ancient Japanese Art of Paper-Folding

STEP ONE—Mrs. George (Masako) Economos of Kingston demonstrates Origami, one of the oldest games in the Orient. The art has become a perfect pastime for youngsters, here as well as in Japan, teaching them new ways to use their hands to design and create. Mrs. Economos, a mother of six children, has used Origami as a "built-in babysitter," keeping her own children occupied and out of mischief for hours on end.

A CRANE—The most popular of all Origami figures in Japan is the crane which seems to be a favorite in this country too. However, Mrs. Economos has taught children how to make houses, animals, boats, jewelry, and lotus flowers also at her classes in Jewish Community Center and at special crafts classes at school.

BRINGING NATURE INTO THE SOUL — Mrs. Economos who has lived in the U.S. for 17 years, is married to George Economos, Publication Department manager at IBM. She enjoys artistic flower arranging, another Japanese skill. Shown here is the basic arrangement, the elm tree indicating the sky; center section, man; and lower level, earth. Advanced arrangements include moon, wind, river and whatever an active imagination creates. (Freeman photos by Haines.)

Local Boy Stars in Commercial

Tommy Pearse, son of Mrs. Tonie Graham, 36 Carroll Street, Poughkeepsie, recently completed two television commercials which were filmed in New York City. The producer of the Keds Sneakers commercial, which required Tommy to sing and dance, was so impressed by his performance that he had him signed by the makers of Jello to appear in their soon to be released commercial.

Tommy, who is only nine years old and relatively new to show business, is already a member of the Screen Actor's Guild. He is handled by his managers, Estelle & Alfonso, at whose studio he also studies voice and dance. His first professional appearance was for Chocks-One-a-Day Vitamins in which he introduced the "Chocks Shuffle" dance. Tommy, whose local performances include "Oliver" and "Hello Dolly," is in the fourth grade at Governor Clinton School.

Welcome to Wildwycke Village

By JOAN L. WOINOSKI

It used to be The Creamery which catered to collegians. But there's been a complete about-face and now it is Wildwycke House of Wildwycke Village, this time catering to adults.

The trio of beautifully hand-cut stone buildings is situated on 254 acres of land in Esopus. Formerly part of the Wiltwyck School for Boys, a pet project of the late Eleanor Roosevelt, the complex is co-owned by Mr. and Mrs. Philip Hellriegle and Mr. and Mrs. Jim Shields. Both couples reside at Wildwycke Village, the Hellriegels in a four bedroom apartment atop the Country Store and the Shields in a charming 15 room house converted into living quarters from three side-by-side stone chicken coops.

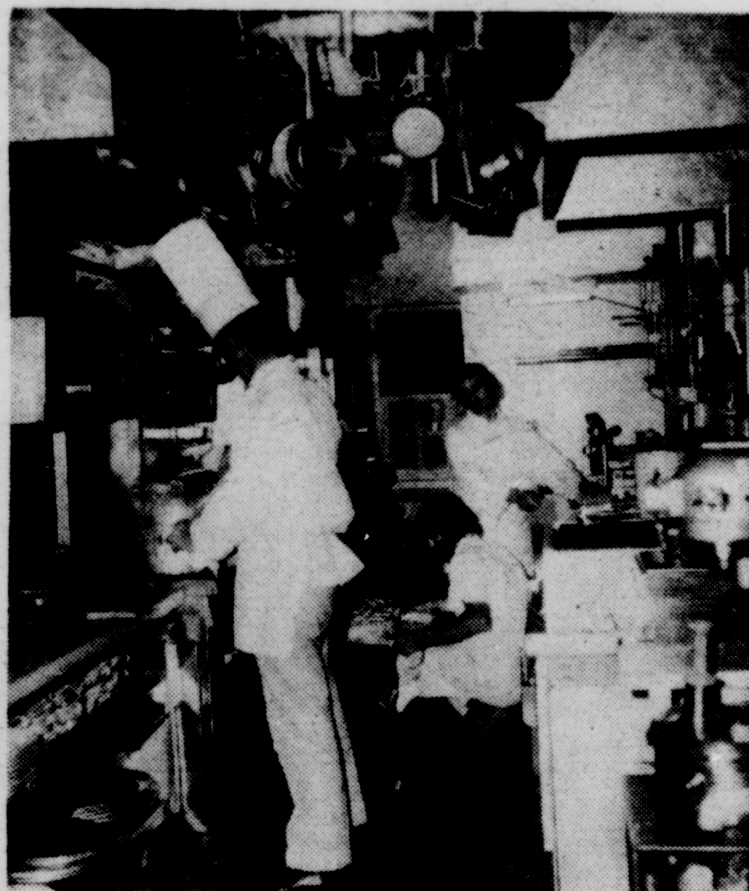

Constructed by Col. Oliver Payne in the early 1900's (cornerstone dated 1910), the architect was Julian Burroughs, a relative of naturalist John Burroughs. At present the Village features an exquisite restaurant with turn-of-the-century decor, a Village Shop, and a soon-to-be-opened Antique Shop. It also houses the business office of Doran Phillips Insurance Agency which both men operated in New York City for the past 20 years, and now have successfully moved, lock, stock, and barrel, to the new location.

Early American Theme

Wildwycke House Restaurant with its stone and wood interior, oxen-yoke lights, candles, plaid carpeting, dark green tablecoverings, and Old Colonial drapes, offers all the niceties of the Early American era. An impressive circular stone fireplace dominates the center of the dining room and a stone patio highlights one side of the building.

Pierre Verger from France is head chef. Although only 31 years of age, and appearing even younger, he has been in the profession for 16 years. His wife Nicole, also from France, is hostess. Waitresses are dressed in black and white; waiters add a dash of red. A particularly nice novelty is their custom of introducing themselves to patrons before taking orders.

"THE MILLION DOLLAR BARN," it was dubbed by Wiltwyck villagers back in 1917. But, surely more castle than barn, the imposing three-story stone structure holds fascination for those who like a dash of history with their dining and browsing.

Appetizers include Seafood Cocktail, Baked Clams, Shrimp Cocktail, Fruit Supreme with Sherbet plus French Onion Soup, Hot Consomme, and Madrilene Jellies. Entree prices range from $3.95 to $15.95 for Chateaubriand for two.

There is an exceptional choice of hors d'oeuvres, fresh salad greens, fresh seasonal vegetables, and a pastry cart of home-made desserts prepared on the premises as well as a selection of imported cheese.

On a recent Thursday evening (restaurant open Wednesday through Sunday), we sampled the best Dover Sole Amandine we've ever eaten and the Chocolate Mousse was made with so much chocolate, it would have put Willy Wonka's factory to shame. Seated at an adjacent table was Gene Ward, noted sports columnist of The News, who is a personal friend of owner Philip Hellriegel, another one-time News employee.

Village Shop

At the Village Shop, there are displays of scented candles, unusual bookends, pitcher and bowl sets, ships of various kinds, old fashioned sweets, puzzles, games, original cravats by Georgie of Pine Bush. Many pieces of Armetale, a fusion of 10 different metals, which are used in the restaurant may be purchased at the Shop. No two pieces are the same. Plans are in the offing to exhibit handiwork of local craftsmen including watercolor paintings, hand woven items, leaded glass, painted ornamental stones which may be used as centerpieces. There is also a possibility that articles such as crocheted pieces made by Senior Citizens will be taken on consignment basis.

At present the Poughkeepsie Boy Scouts are setting up camp each weekend on the premises. Working on project SOAR — Save Our American Resources — in conjunction with the Conservation Department, the scouts are clearing brush from the stream at the bottom end of the property, making footpaths for persons to walk along the trails, lining pathways with stone borders, and posting signs to note unusual plants and shrubs. The arrangement seems to be a rewarding one for both the owners and the scouts, as well as Conservation Department.

Future Possibilities

Several long-range plans are being considered for the future. There is a possibility the proprietors will open a winery on the premises and perhaps have bus tours around the property to view the natural beauties including an active waterfall which the 254 acreage offers.

Nestled in the fine historic atmosphere of the Hudson Valley, Wildwycke House officially opened September 7, and is lending itself as an unusual retreat, according to "Dining and Shopping in an Elegance of Days Gone By."

Gem and Mineral Show Set

FISHKILL
The Mid Hudson Valley Gem and Mineral Society, Inc. is holding its second annual show today and Sunday at the John Jay High School, Route 52, East Fishkill.

Part of the aim of the Society is to provide a scholarship for a deserving science student. The program will include mineral and gem displays as well as fossil and sea shells. There will be a variety of lectures and a special exhibit of rock sawing by lapidarist Allen West, as well as a competitive contest of students picked from several high school science classes in the area.

Dale Chadwick, curator of the Gregory Museum of Hicksville, L.I., will lecture on minerals. He will also identify unknown rocks and mineral specimens brought in by collectors, using a new method, the Petrographic microscope, which is the nearest means of identification to x-ray.

Movies

See No Evil

Written by Brian Clemens and directed by Richard Fleischer, "See No Evil," which started Wednesday at Mayfair Theatre, is in the nature of a return to films for Mia Farrow. It has been nearly two years since her last movie, even though she has made news off-screen in the meantime. Playing the role of a young English girl who is blinded as the result of a horse fall, she's determined to be self-sufficient. Her aunt, uncle and cousin are sympathetic but understanding. Mia's old boy friend, horse breeder Norman Eshley, presents her with a steed, Dandy Star, son of the animal which caused the blindness. Upon returning home, Mia finds her relatives have been murdered by a pervert in cowboy boots. She finds a clue to the crime and rides off for help. Oodles of excitement follows and while Eshley and men hunt for the killer, Mia bathes, unaware the guilty one is nearby. As a blind girl menaced by a homicidal maniac, she does a near-perfect job of sustaining her character while coping with an English accent and engaging in some rugged stunt work.

Van Cliburn Highlights Arts Council's 11th Season

MIDDLETOWN World-famous pianist Van Cliburn performs largely on the great concert stages of the world, and it is a rarity to have this renowned virtuoso play in a city the size of Middletown.

For ten years the Greater Middletown Arts Council has been breaking tradition by bringing internationally acclaimed and sophisticated attractions to this region. And it is no surprise to those who have followed the venturesome course of the regional council's first decade to learn that its 11th season includes Van Cliburn as one of its featured attractions.

The council's entire "Festival '71-72" is no less impressive. Its total program includes 23 individual performance days, with not a repeat performance in the offering. Its major artist series includes, in addition to Van Cliburn, two current New York hits — "Butterflies Are Free" and "Jacques Brel Is Alive and Well and Living in Paris," as well as two noted dance companies—the National Ballet of Washington, and the Dance Theatre of Harlem.

A second 16-part film series, scheduled for January and February of 1971, opens with the personal appearance of silent screen star Lillian Gish on Saturday night, Jan. 8, in an evening of movie nostalgia. This will be followed by a two-months weekend D. W. Griffith and Charlie Chaplin silent film festival at Orange County Community College. The silent classics are from the collection of Bown and Virginia Adams.

Opening Festival '71-72 will be an art exhibit which the council is cooperating with, to be held at the Hall of Fame of the Trotter in Goshen. The Oct. 4, two-week showing features the arts council's original cover designs dating back to 1962 by artist Fritz Blumenthal, and sculpture by Marianne Blumenthal.

A colorful brochure describing the Arts Council's complete season may be obtained by writing to Greater Middletown Arts Council, 40 Mulberry Street, Middletown.

The major five-part series opens on Friday night, Oct. 24 with the current Broadway play, "Butterflies Are Free." Leonard Gershe's enchanting comedy about a blind youth who wrenches himself free from his overprotective mother, and finds romance and excitement in Greenwich Village, is still drawing sold-out houses to Broadway.

One of the most exciting young black dance troupes on the scene today is the Dance Theatre of Harlem, which the Arts Council has booked for Sunday afternoon, Feb. 19. Directed by Arthur Mitchell, star of the New York City Ballet, the company won top notices last spring at its New York debut at the ATLANTA Theater's Modern Dance Marathon. Its striking choreography and vibrant dancers have won young and varied audiences wherever the company performed.

A definite bonus for ballet fans will be the full-length three-act "Coppelia" performed by the noted National Ballet of Washington, on Sunday afternoon, Feb. 13. Directed by Frederic Franklin, the resident company of the new Kennedy Center for Performing Arts in Washington, will dance the 100 year old enchanting fantasy to the accompaniment of the Washington Ballet Orchestra.

Van Cliburn's evening long recital has been booked for Saturday night, March 18, through the management of Sol Hurok. Since his dramatic victory in the first International Tchaikovsky Competition in Moscow in 1958, Van Cliburn has been one of the most sought after artists in the world.

"Jacques Brel Is Alive and Well and Living in Paris" long-running, current off-Broadway musical, is set for Saturday night, May 6. The musical revue is dedicated to recreating in English the greatness of Brel's songs and making them as living, moving, and vital to Americans as they have been to Europeans.

The five-part artist series is available now. There is a reduction for subscribers over individual ticket prices, and season subscribers were given seating preference through Oct. 1. Only 700 subscriptions are available. Mail orders are being reserved at this time.

Series tickets for the five productions are only $22.50, half of what they would cost in their New York presentations. Single tickets are $5.50, $4, and $2 for students, with the exception of Van Cliburn's concert which is $7.50, $5.50, and $3.50. Mail orders will be filled promptly.

School officials may order blocks of student tickets by sending reservations to the Music Department, Board of Education, Middletown School System, 150 Prospect Avenue, Middletown.

Area Ballet Dancer in National Feature Role

Ten year-old Karen Sedore Kodak. Little Karen not only had to dance well but had to look like one of the Robert Joffrey Ballet Company's leading ballerinas, Miss Rebecca Wright, who also choreographed the dances for the commercial.

Shooting for this particular film was done on location in Greenwich, Conn., where outdoor scenes were shot at a picnic, a birthday party and at an outdoor recital. Later filming was done in New York City at Carnegie Hall in a dance class sequence. Karen, who is a member of the Screen Actor's Guild, studies ballet from Estelle & Alfonso and also takes all other forms of dance.

One of her previous television commercials for Glissade Spray Starch showed her as a tap dancer who ended her lively routine in an acrobatic split. She also studies baton, dramatics, voice and does pantomime; her most recent appearance being at the Firemen's Fair in Red Hook. Her career, which is under the management of Estelle & Alfonso, has included television commercials for Post Alphabits Cereal and a series for Howard Johnson's. She appeared in local productions of "Oliver" and "Hello Dolly", "Sound of Music", "Mary Poppins" and "Thoroughly Modern Millie".

Karen, who will be entering fifth grade at the Martha Lawrence School in Spackenkill, is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Louis Sedore of 15 Laffin Lane.

Her Kodak commercial is also scheduled for overseas release.

PLACES TO DINE & DANCE

POTPOURRI By JOAN L. WOINOSKI

A funny thing happened on our way to The Freeman's 100th Anniversary. It was during a chit chat with former Freeman City Editor Joe Kelly who's a wealth of "info" from pugilism to politics and most fields in between.

Joe was reminiscing 'bout the old circus days in Kingston. Being a personal friend of Tom Mix, who was the only bonafide cowboy in real life as well as movies, Joe had many buddies in the traveling shows of typists. Most, not all. While acrobatics, clowns, horses, other lassies were learnin' to type, teach or take temperatures, Miss K. was trainin' elephants and lions—live ones, to be sure.

It was back in days when one dollar bought a pound of top round, a marrow bone and a peck o' potatoes...and Mom said, "Bring home the change." Prices were low but then so were salaries. Lions were fed 15 pounds of meat per day and the only ones who enjoyed workin' for peanuts were the elephants.

One of the ivory-tusked memory-marvels with whom Miss K. performed was dubbed "Lindy." Tho a circus AND political elephant, Lindy didn't do so well as a vote-getter in his appearance with various GOP groups during campaign of 1930s. BUT he was reportedly a "wow" on the circus floor. Although it's certain Lindy loved his trainer dearly, his BEST-LOVED pal was a shepherd dog named Buddy.

About this same time, there was a wedding here that made local headlines. It's fact that whether gals grow up to be teachers or trainers, most of them eventually marry. Sometimes HE may be a high school beau, a blind date or the boy next door. Anyway, the blushin' bride and her Prince Charming become Mr. and Mrs. in the pretty parish church amid usual pomp and splendor (and live happily ever after, naturally.) Usually, that is. But not so in the lives of Miss X and Mr. Y as far as ROUTINE nuptials were concerned.

Now there have been weddings on horseback in Central Park as well as couples who've tied the knot thousands of feet d-o-w-n in underground caverns. Well, this local couple—Miss X and Mr. Y—were wed in the seclusion of a lion's steel arena right here in good ole Kingston. Advertised as a "Jungle Wedding," the happy event took place in the old armory, now the municipal auditorium. And no area church could have handled the crowd. It was a full house with not a ticket left to be had.

The five lions in the arena behaved like pussycats, forming a tableau scene and restin' their paws upon a yoke about the rainer's shoulders. 'Twas almost the 11th hour when a problem arose. What with mounting excitement, the couple had forgotten to engage a parson. Tho several were contacted, none wanted the "honor." Finally, it seems an area member of the cloth accepted. He arrived on the scene, was led to the "wedding party," and officiated at the ceremony.

Throughout the service, the Reverend must have paused in hesitation as a roar or two issued forth from rear of arena. However, it wasn't 'til sometime later that onlookers realized the courageous clergyman was suffering from an affliction....the poor parson was BLIND!

One-Woman Show of Prose, Poetry and Song at OCCC

29—THE DAILY FREEMAN, OCTOBER 2, 1971

MIDDLETOWN in New York City, and it won her instant, unanimous and ecstatic critical acclaim. Clive Barnes of the New York Times called her "a magnificent performer." The New York Post said she was "funny, gutsy, diverse and colorful, ironic, apocalyptic."

In the spring of 1969, Miss Burrows continued her brilliant career with performances in Algiers at the First PanAfrican Cultural Festival, a television special in Bucharest, an appearance at an amphitheatre of 10,000 people in Stockholm, and another television special in Amsterdam.

In the fall of 1970, Miss Burrows climaxed a six-week tour of Holland during which more than 50,000 college youths in 28 cities accorded her nightly standing ovations.

A native New Yorker and a reserved seat went on public sale on October 1 in the office of the OCCC dean of students in Orange Hall.

"Walk Together Children" was first performed by Miss Burrows on November 11, 1968 at the Greenwich Mews Theater

University, she made her Broadway debut with Helen Hayes in "The Wisteria Trees" and has been seen in six other Broadway shows, appearing with Ossie Davis, Mary Martin, David Wayne, Godfrey Cambridge, among others. She has appeared off Broadway in "The Blacks" and "The Worlds of Shakespeare."

Miss Burrows spans the years of black history—from the slave traders to the underground railroad to the years of hope to the current turmoil—in 90 minutes of reading, recitation, song and dance. The program, open to the public, is sponsored by the OCCC Lyceum Series.

Reserved seats went on public sale on October 1 in the office of the OCCC dean of students in Orange Hall.

ERNESTLY SPEAKING

THE PARTY LINE

In my all-out verbal war against those whom (mistakenly or not), carelessly spread rumors about "Roberto's high prices," I've kind of forgotten my seasonal "plugs" for one department that needs no defense against such rumors: Our PARTY Department.

The reason it needs no defense is that, when it comes to booking a party, there's no room for fumadiddles. If you use the basic elements of common sense, you'll get an estimate based on an exact menu. Then all you have to do is compare what you get, item for item (and, of course, comparable quality and service) then add it all up. When restaurateurs have to compete on this open-and-shut basis, it's like that gag about the nudist camp wedding . . . it's easy to see who is the best man.

That's not to say that we book every party that inquires at Roberto's. There are some who don't want to go as high as our minimum, or who would rather eliminate some of our features to get a lower price. That is their prerogative, and everybody should know what their budget should be.

At Roberto's we have a PRINTED Party Menu . . . explicit in detail, and the same offer to one and all . . . from 20 to 150 guests. It starts with a Cocktail "on the house." It includes Roberto's regular Relish Tray, and your choice of Fresh Fruit Cocktail or Melon; Rolls, bread and butter, naturally; Potato, Vegetable and Tossed Salad; Ice Cream or Cake and Coffee. All these trimmings go with any Dinner you choose: $4.00 for Broiled Chicken; $4.50 for Roast Turkey; $5.00 for Roast Sirloin of Beef; $6.00 for Roast Prime Ribs of Beef.

Paste this list in your hat, and sneak a peek at it when you go anywhere else to see what they give you for the same money.

AMONG THOSE PLEASANT

at Roberto's recently, a group self-named "The Red Hook Honor Guard" (from Red Hook, I assume) reported their visit as "a celebration of the liberation of one of our members." The celebrants were Mr. and Mrs. Sidney Delaney, Mr. and Mrs. Charles Donovan and Mr. and Mrs. Ken Rodder; but they failed to name the "liberee," or what he or she was liberated from. Maybe you Red Hookians can puzzle that out; but the wind-up was no puzzle: "Excellent Dinner; a jovial time was had by all." Whooping it up for the 79th birthday of Frank Mandy, of Highland, were Miss Janice Holloway and Miss Louise Mandy, of Hyde Park; Mr. and Mrs. John J. Mandy, of Highland, and Mr. and Mrs. Gene Whitely, of Poughkeepsie. The report (from next year's octogenarian, I hope) was: "Food and Service Excellent!." *** Just a "Family Get-Together" is the way Stephan Withall put it; "family" consisting of Mrs. Orestes Brancati, Ulster Park; Mr. and Mrs. Louis Laford, Kingston; Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Withall, Ulster Park; Mr. and Mrs. Stephan Withall, Kingston. Withall that (pardon the pun) the considered verdict was: "Very Good!" *** And the mini-anniversary of the year: Mr. and Mrs. Ralph Mellus, of The Bronx, N. Y., came up to celebrate their THIRD WEEK! Of course, the party also saluted the birthdays of the mother of the bride, Mrs. Rose Nolen, and her neighbors, Terri and Charlie Ryan. (Dad Nolen came along just for kicks!)

And then, of course, there was the party of the year, on Sunday, Sept. 19th, when the Wadnola Wedding Party, for the wedding of Donna McGinnis to Thomas Wadnola . . . said principals being the justly popular Donna The Cocktail Waitress and Tom The Bartender! What a party! There must have been 175 guests, but unfortunately, not all of them got listed for my TEMPO sheet.

The wedding party consisted of Mr. and Mrs. Ray Lukaszewski; Mr. and Mrs. Fred Wadnola Jr.; Pat McGinnis, Jan Cline, Mr. and Mrs. Steven Thayer, Kathleen McGinnis, Robert Benson, Mrs. Louise McGinnis, Michael Amato; Flower Girl: Gina McGinnis; Ring Bearer: Raymond Lukaszewski.

As near as I can make out, the guests included: Mr. and Mrs. Michael F. Amato and Mr. Michael J. Amato, Glasco; Mr. and Mrs. James Carpino, Kingston; Mr. and Mrs. Jan Cline, Kingston; Mr. and Mrs. Robert Corcoran, Port Ewen; Mr. and Mrs. Carl Esposito, Kingston; Mr. and Mrs. Jack Finnan, Brooklyn, N. Y.; Mr. and Mrs. David Greenburg, Kingston; Mr. and Mrs. Richard Griggs, Port Ewen; Mrs. James Halwick, Glasco; Mr. and Mrs. Jack Leary and Mr. Donald Leary, Merrick, N. Y.; Mr. and Mrs. Peter Mancuso, Kingston; Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Mayone, Glasco; Miss Helen Mooney, Brooklyn, N. Y.; Mrs. Lucy Perry and daughter "Cookie," Port Ewen; Miss Jan Simmons, Merrick, N. Y.; Mr. and Mrs. John Sumailaski, Kingston; Mr. and Mrs. Steven Thayer, Kingston; Mr. and Mrs. Fred Wadnola Sr., Kingston; Mrs. Ann Williams, Kingston & many, many more.

Too many good comments to print, including: Terrific! Best Time we ever had! Never had such delicious food! Everything Wonderful! Nice reception! Best Time Ever! Special Thanks to Maitre'd, Papa Joe Amato!

I think I'll quit while I'm ahead!
